This exciting activity invites employees to explore the rich history of the city THP is headquartered in, while encouraging exercise and movement during the workday.

Nearly 100 employees have signed up to participate in this journey through time, where they will follow clues and solve puzzles that lead them to historical landmarks. From famous buildings and monuments to lesser-known spots with unique stories, the scavenger hunt is designed to be educational and interactive while promoting physical activity.

“We wanted to create an activity that would allow people to engage with our town’s rich history in a fun and interactive way,” said Jeff Knight, president and CEO of The Health Plan. “We hope this scavenger hunt will inspire people to learn more about the unique heritage that makes Wheeling so special, all while encouraging them to incorporate exercise into their day-to-day routines.”
